Name of Website: Jay's Food Wrld

After reviewing possible topics for this project, I've decided to create a website featuring food recipes. Specifically, the food that I love to make. Cooking has been a hobby that I've taken up recently, and it would be cool if I could share that with my peers or anyone, for that matter. The recipes are easy to follow and include helpful tips to enhance the dishes. Through this, I hope to inspire others to explore and enjoy cooking.

Page 1: About page. This will be the page you'll see when you open the website. This will explain the website's purpose and share a little personal info about me.

Page 2: Recipes page. This is where you'll find the recipes. It'll span from finger foods like pizza sliders or mozzarella balls to normal dishes like chicken alfredo or fried rice. Each food will have its own picture to show the end result. This will also include a search bar.

The website will store information about recipes, including recipe names, ingredients, cooking instructions, and images. This data will be displayed so visitors can easily view and follow the recipes.
